Fortunately, however, the growth of industrialism has coincided in the West with the growth of democracy. It is possible now, if the population of the world does not increase too fast, for one man's labour to produce much more than is needed to provide a bare subsistence for himself and his family. Given an intelligent democracy not misled by some dogmatic creed, this possibility will be used to raise the standard of life. It has been so used, to a limited extent, in Britain and America and would have been so used more effectively but for war. Its use in raising the standard of life has depended mainly upon three things: democracy, trade unionism, and birth control. All three of course, have incurred hostility from the rich. If these three things can be extended to the rest of the world as it becomes industrialized, and if the dangers of great wars can be eliminated, poverty can be abolished throughout the world, and excessive hours of labour will no longer be necessary anywhere, but without these three things, industrialism will create a regime like that in which the Pharaohs built the pyramids. In particular, if world population continues to increase at the present rate, the abolition of poverty and excessive work will be totally impossible.

Questions:

- i. What connection does the writer show between industrialism and democracy?
- ii. How can the standard of life be raised?
- iii. How can poverty be abolished?
- iv. What will be the impact of increase in population at the present rate?
- v. Suggest a suitable title for the passage.
